EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

India's college students graduate with degrees — but almost none graduate with the financial skills to manage their first salary, avoid a UPI scam, or build a savings plan. University-level financial literacy remains nearly non-existent across Indian campuses.

The RupeeValcore Student Financial Literacy Programme offers two engagement models: a certified Annual Programme (monthly 60-minute sessions, 9–10 months) for deep, sustained skill-building, and a standalone One-Time 3-Hour Campus Financial Wellness Workshop for institutions that want immediate, high-impact delivery with no long-term commitment. Both are 100% activity-based, SEBI-compliant, and require minimal preparation from faculty. We do not sell financial products. We do not earn commissions.

“India's students know trigonometry but not tax. They can derive equations but cannot read a pay slip. RupeeValcore exists to close this gap — one campus at a time.”

— C. Manikandan, Lead Trainer & Programme Head, RupeeValcore

02

FINANCIAL CAPABILITY GAP ON CAMPUS

College students are months away from receiving their first salary — yet the vast majority have never been taught how to budget, manage EMIs, avoid common financial scams, or even understand the difference between CTC and take-home pay. This is not a personal failure. It is a systemic gap that institutions have the power to address.

The Challenge	Our Programme Response	Outcome for Participants
Students receive first salary without ever being taught budgeting basics	Foundation module: salary structure, 50/30/20 budgeting, expense tracking — live activity	Student builds first monthly budget on the day of receiving their first paycheck
UPI fraud increasingly targets young, digitally-active users — college students are a high-risk group	Digital safety: UPI scam awareness, phishing recognition, OTP discipline — case studies	Student confidently identifies and avoids digital financial fraud
Credit cards and EMIs targeted aggressively at new graduates	Credit & debt: EMI calculation, credit score basics, debt traps — interactive exercise	Graduate understands cost of credit and avoids predatory lending cycles
Investment FOMO draws students toward high-risk trading without any foundation	Investment awareness (SEBI-safe): mutual funds, SIPs, risk profiles — no product pitch	Student understands investment basics within SEBI compliance — no product bias

The Challenge	Our Programme Response	Outcome for Participants
No income tax awareness among final-year students about to file ITR	Tax awareness: income tax slabs, Form 16, ITR basics — relatable examples	Student files first ITR confidently — a practical life skill at the right time

03 PROGRAMME STRUCTURE

One-Time 3-Hour Campus Financial Wellness Workshop

“3 Hours. Real Skills. No Sales Pitch.” A standalone, in-campus 3-hour intensive — ideal as a Department Induction event, NSS/NCC special session, Placement Preparation module, or Orientation Week highlight. Delivered by a NISM XII Certified Trainer. SEBI-compliant. Minimal faculty preparation required.

Time Block	Segment	What Happens
0-15 min	Welcome & Financial Health Check	Anonymous self-assessment across 5 financial areas. Trainer calibrates session focus.
15-60 min	Hour 1: Money Fundamentals	Needs vs wants · 50/30/20 budgeting live activity · Banking & UPI safety · Digital fraud case study
60-120 min	Hour 2: Practical Finance	Credit scores & why they matter · EMI true-cost calculator · Income tax basics · SIPs & mutual funds (SEBI-safe)
120-170 min	Hour 3: Your Financial Roadmap	Salary anatomy (CTC vs take-home) · Goal-based planning · Emergency fund · Each student builds a 1-page personal financial action plan
170-180 min	Q&A + Commitments	Each student commits to one financial action within 7 days. RupeeValcore Participation Certificates distributed.

Annual Programme — Three Curriculum Levels

One 60-minute session per cohort per month, embedded in your existing college calendar — department orientation slots, NSS/NCC periods, student club hours, or dedicated life-skills time. No extra faculty required. No academic disruption.
